Kennedy Meets Titov, Praises 17-Orbit Trip

Gov. Hughes' 5-Day Old Son Is 'Critical'

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The five-day-old son of New Jersey Governor Richard J. Hughes remains in critical condition today at Children's Hospital here with a respiratory condition.

A hospital spokesman explained that an earlier report stating the infant, Thomas More Hughes, was in serious condition was the result of a confusion in definition.

The spokesman said X-rays of the baby's chest will be taken and that "other possible tests will be made."

The infant, Thomas More, was rushed here by ambulance during a heavy rainstorm late Wednesday night from St. Francis Hospital in Trenton, N.J., where he was born Sunday night.

Hospital officials said early today the child had a "respiratory illness." He was placed in an isolette, a type of incubator.

The governor, three doctors and a nurse accompanied the stricken youngster in the ride from Trenton.

A spokesman for the governor's office said oxygen was administered to the boy during the drive.

Hughes later returned to Trenton to discuss the boy's condition with his wife, Betty, still a patient at St. Francis, where she has been under treatment also for a gallbladder ailment.

Glenn Escorts Red Hero

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy welcomed Soviet cosmonaut Gherman Titov to the nation's capital today and voiced his admiration for the Red army major's 17-orbit flight around the earth.

Titov was taken to the White House by U.S. astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. who previously gave the Russian a short course in U.S. history and showed him some of this country's pioneer space equipment.

The State Department disclosed meanwhile that it had suggested that Titov visit Cape Canaveral and three other U.S. space age facilities but that the Russian Embassy had declined.

U.S. officials said they assumed this meant the Soviets wanted to avoid a precedent which would oblige them to open their rocket and missile launching facilities to visits by Glenn or other American astronauts. The State Department said, however, that it did not ask for "reciprocity."

At the White House, Kennedy chatted with Titov for about five minutes and then escorted him and Glenn to the porch just outside the executive office overlooking the sunswept White House grounds.

While they posed for photographs, the President said "I want to say that Mr. Titov is very welcome to the United States." Turning directly to the cosmonaut, he added "I admire what you did."

Titov, beaming constantly, answered through an interpreter, "Thank you very much, it has been a great pleasure."

Glenn and Titov met today for the first time just before they began a tour of historical monuments and other tourist attractions in the nation's capital.

Titov's interest seemed to pick up most near the end of the tour when he and Glenn arrived at the Smithsonian Institution's display of rockets and space vehicles.

Perturbs Penna. Agency

The increase from $2 to $4 in automobile inspection fees today was called "unjustified" by the state Bureau of Traffic Safety in Harrisburg.

The new fee went into effect Tuesday when the new inspection period began.

Eugene Farkas, public information officer for the traffic safety bureau in Harrisburg, told the Courier-Times this morning that the changes required by the state of inspection stations "does not justify the increase in inspection costs to motorists."

Farkas made it clear that the fee is not set by the state, which has no authorization to set such fees.

In Procedure

Farkas said that the required changes in inspection are mostly in procedure.

"We simply clarified some of the steps inspection stations should follow," he said. "But as for actual additional labor and time involved, it is certainly not enough to justify a $2 increase."

Farkas said the only additional work involved is that stations must remove two wheels to inspect brakes instead of one wheel.

"That certainly shouldn't cost the motorist an additional $2," he said.

One Wheel

Until November of last year, inspection stations were just required to remove one wheel —either a front wheel or a rear wheel, Farkas said.

"Since then, we've agreed that for safety, it would be better to look at the brakes of any front wheel and any rear wheel," he said.

Farkas said there was no set fee for inspection but that some organizations in Pennsylvania have decided that all stations in the areas they cover should henceforth charge $4.00.

No Regulations

Farkas said station owners are not guided by any laws as to what fee to charge since there are no regulations regarding fees.

He said a station owner can

School Director's Accusations Don't Jibe With Figures

By SCOOP LEWIS
Courier-Times Staff Writer

Charges and claims made in recent days by Anthony J. Ciccantelli, a member of the Delhaas Joint School Board, regarding empty classrooms and dwindling enrollment in the school system were repudiated today in facts and figures obtained from the school board.

Ciccantelli, who made a surprise tour of secondary schools in Bristol Township last week, said he observed 19 empty classrooms at Delhaas. He charged that valuable classroom space is being wasted.

He also criticized the school board for "considering adding four classrooms to these buildings."

Refers to $40,000,000

Ciccantelli is a member of the Delhaas Joint School Board since Tullytown Borough is part of the Delhaas Jointure. However, the cost of building schools is borne entirely by the Bristol Township School Board. Ciccantelli, a teacher at Northeast High in Philadelphia, is not a member of the Bristol Township board.

Ciccantelli made reference to $40 million spent for school construction in the Delhaas Jointure the past ten years.

Figures taken from the 1961-62 Delhaas Joint School budget show that $16,390,684 has been spent on school construction in Bristol Township. Ciccantelli also has this data since every one of the board's 14 school directors have copies of the budget.

As for empty classrooms, Robert P. Martin, district superintendent, confirmed this fact. "Since the opening of Woodrow Wilson High,"

Good Evening!

Bloodbath in Algeria.

Some 110 killed, 147 wounded by terrorists in the worst outbreak since the March 19 truce and it all doesn't do much for deGaulle's dream of a renaissance of France's grandeur.

U. S. explodes a million-ton nuclear shot as another of its series of Pacific tests, now becoming somewhat routine.

Uncle Sam's determination to do what he thinks best for the free world apparently okay with the free world. The tumult and the shouting from much of the misguided died quickly.

We dunno. But we think the Pennsylvania Attorney General's ruling that there's no law against school administrators peddling their own books in their own districts neither answers an interesting question nor solves a growing problem.

And it would seem State School Superintendent Charley Boehm is doing a distinguished job of straddling both. The law is beside the point. Matters of principle, ethics and conflict of interest are those that should attract attention of enlightened educators and school boards.

We see where the state Democrats are pleading with President Kennedy to make two speeches in Pennsylvania instead of one—political speeches, that is, to help Mr. Dilworth.

And we suppose Mr. Eisenhower will be kept busy by the GOP between now and the November sweepstakes to help Mr. Scranton.

You know, there used to be a day when candidates went out and got themselves elected on their own merits—instead of on the coattails of a president or an ex-president. And you don't have to be too old to remember.

Bristol Township school squabbling still continues with a self-fancied expert of the Tullytown Board trying to tell the township how to operate.

Why don't these fellows quit grabbing headlines and just settle down to the job of providing the best possible educational opportunity for children?

U.S. Willing To Halt Tests If Pact OKd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States told the neutral nations today that this country "will gladly cease" nuclear testing the moment an effective test ban agreement can be reached with Russia.

But in a note to the government of Ghana, the United States said that without a Soviet agreement, this country "will not unilaterally relinquish the right to conduct defense preparations."

The note was dispatched a day after the Defense Department and Atomic Energy Commission announced that the third U.S. atmospheric weapons test had been conducted in the Pacific.

The note to Ghana urged the neutral nations to support U.S. efforts to achieve an effectively monitored test ban agreement. It was in response to a note of April 26 from Ghana appealing for an end to testing by all nations.

The U.S. reply said that this

U.S. Blasts 3rd Nuclear Device

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States exploded the third and largest nuclear device yesterday in its atmospheric test series in the Pacific.

The Atomic Energy Commission said the explosion yielded a force equal to between one to five million tons of TNT.

The device was dropped from an airplane near Christmas Island like the first two in the series.

All of the tests thus far apparently have been aimed at getting more punch into missile warheads, and the size of Wednesday's blast indicates it may have been an actual warhead.

Economy League Told

Common Market Offers Challenge

By SCOOP LEWIS
Courier-Times Staff Writer

The success of the European Common Market can be attributed in large measure to the lower "per job" cost, the Bucks County branch of the Pennsylvania Economy League was told last night.

Speaking at the group's 10th annual meeting held in the Pennsbury Inn, Casimir A. Sienkiewicz, president of Central-Penn National Bank of Philadelphia, delivered an inspiring and informative talk on "The European Common Market and Its Implications for the United States."

Prior to Sienkiewicz's address, the Bucks County branch of the economy league held its annual election of officers.

Albert T. McIlhenny of the U.S. Steel Corp. was reelected chairman of the branch while W. Bruce Fye, vice president of the Philadelphia National Bank, was named vice chairman.

Robert Frane of Owens - Illinois, was elected secretary - treasurer.

McIlhenny, after brief opening remarks on the 10-year history of the PEL's work in Bucks County, introduced Wilbur C. Webb, executive secretary, and Lennox L. Moak, director of the PEL's Eastern Division.

Well Versed

Sienkiewicz, who came to the United States from his native Poland when he was but a schoolboy of 16, is acknowledged to be one of the foremost exponents of the European Common Market. His talk last night gave evidence that he's well versed on the complex subject.

Sienkiewicz told the PEL branch that "cost per unit output" is an important factor in the success of the European Common Market. The investmant per job in the United States is $20,000, he pointed out, while it's only $4,500 per

It was 63 degrees at 2 p.m. today.

Kline-Williams Race Key To GOP Leadership

By PAUL ALTAIRE
Courier-Times Staff Writer

Registered Republican voters in Bucks County's first assembly district will play a major role in the May 15 Primary election by indicating whether they approve—or disapprove—of the so-called "Ziegler-Boyer" faction of their party.

While no referendum on the matter will appear on the Primary ballot, their choice between incumbent Assemblyman Alan D. Williams, or his opponent, William O. Kline as their assemblyman candidates should provide the key to which faction of the party they favor.

The first assembly district comprises some 50,000 registered Republican voters while the second assembly district, in the Lower Bucks area, has about 25,000.

ALAN D. WILLIAMS
. . . opposed to Ziegler—Boyer

Also to be considered is the fact that the area of the first district consists of voters who have lived in that district for a considerably longer period of time than their counterparts in the lower end of the county.

Two Terms

Williams, who at year's end will have completed two, two-year terms as assemblyman, is backed by the newly formed Bucks County Republican Alliance. The alliance is also backing Bucks County District Attorney Paul R. Beckert in his bid to unseat Frederick E. Ziegler as county GOP chairman on June 23.

Kline, who like Williams hails from Doylestown, is the organization Republican choice as candidate for the district, which includes all of Bucks except the townships of Bristol, Falls, Bensalem and Lower Southampton, and Tullytown and Bristol Boroughs.

WILLIAM O. KLINE
. . . GOP Organization choice.

"Power Grab"

Kline is waging an all-out campaign to win the nomination together with incumbent Mrs. Marguerite S. Kooker of Quakertown. He said that the dissident faction (the alliance) is opposing his candidacy for the "self avowed purpose of executing a power grab solely for its own devices." Kline said, "they are trying to tear the Republican party apart and divide it."

He said, "if they have their way (on May 15) we will be weaker in November. This doesn't

Objects To Michener's Talk

Curtin Says Office Help Does Good Job

U. S. Rep. Willard S. Curtin last night charged novelist James A. Michener, Democratic candidate for Congress, with playing "fast and loose with words" and added, "I especially resent his below-the-belt attacks on the women who staff my Washington office."

In a statement prepared for reading last night to the Lehigh County of Republican Women's Council meeting in the Americus Hotel, Allentown, Curtin referred to a Michener speech in Allentown earlier this week in which the novelist claimed the people on Curtin's Washington staff are "outsiders," Curtin said, "If Michener were at all interested in being fair, he would recognize that these are ladies of the highest character and ability, chosen after passing the test as dedicated career people who have given years of honorable service in the Federal government. In choosing to pick on these women, Michener without the slightest compunction implies that they are not residents of the district. are incompetent because they are not residents of the district.

Remarkable Job

"Actually, by reason of their knowledge of the numerous bureaus and agencies which are typical of the mushrooming bigness of government in Washington, these ladies have done a remarkable job assisting me in attending to the wants and needs of the people of our Eighth Congressional District. Citizens of Bucks and Lehigh counties are familiar with the way all kinds of emergency situations have been taken care of by me with the help of these women, quickly and smoothly, in everything from emergency requests for passports to the problems of veterans.

"I resent Michener's attack on them. He simply doesn't know, or care, what he is talking about. These ladies, far from being outsiders, are experienced public servants who day in and day out — without regard for partisan political considerations — do a splendid job. And it is a matter of record that our personnel policy in Washington has been to give preference to any applicants from Lehigh and Bucks Counties who are adjudged to be familiar with the requirements of the work in Washington."

Concluded Curtin: "Small wonder that Michener has gained a reputation as a writer of fiction. On the basis of his speeches to date, he is committed to a heavy-handed and transparent strategy of reaching for headlines.

Candidates Differ

"Candidate Michener and I differ in one important respect. I am concerned with representing the people to Washington. He is enamoured of the idea of representing Washington to the people.

"Before the campaign is over, I anticipate Michener will bring his Broadway, Hollywood, and Washington cronies into Bucks and Lehigh Counties by the droves. Let them come. We shall welcome them. Let them have their fun. But I serve notice here and now on Candidate Michener that his glib accusations are going to be answered point by point. This isn't a play or novel that he is acting out. This is a real life situation that deals in facts — not fiction. Let this election be decided on our respective qualifications and willigness to work full time at the job of being the people's representatives in Washington — nothing else."

Glenn, Titov

They first inspected the original Wright Brothers plane.

The Russian cosmonaut chuckled when Glenn noted that "the control stick is a little different" than the one handled by Titov during his orbital flight.

All during the tour, Glenn pointed out the significance of the sights in the light of U.S. history.

Tourists Applaud Airmen

On several occasions, the two spacemen were recognized by teen-aged tourists who cheered, applauded and waved.

Glenn and Titov first met at the National Academy of Science, where they shared coffee with their wives before driving around the city.

Their 18-car, police - escorted motorcade stopped first at the Lincoln Memorial, where Glenn called Titov's attention to the Gettysburg Address which is inscribed on the wall.

The 40-year-old Glenn and his 27-year-old Russian guest seemed to hit it off well as soon as they met. They exchanged autographs and joked together about the swarm of newsmen and photographers that flocked around.

Glenn Helps Titov

As they were leaving the academy of science building, Glenn, taller than the Russian, came to the assistance of the five-foot-four Titov who had difficulty getting through the crush of newsmen.

Although both replied on interpreters, the two space explorers conversed animatedly and frequently exchanged grins.

When newsmen asked for their reaction to their first meeting, Titov laughed and said: "We're not trained for speech making."

Glenn replied: "I certainly agree."

While the morning was to be spent on a friendly, social basis, Titov and Glenn also held man-to-man discussions of their historic space voyages.

The two astronauts and their wives were introduced in a second floor office of the National Academy of Sciences shortly before 9 a.m. EDT.

This afternoon, both spacemen were scheduled to report on their orbital experiences to the 18-nation Committee on Space Research (COSPAR) of the International Council of Scientific Unions. Titov and Glenn, delegates to the meeting, also planned to hold a joint news conference at 6:15 p.m., EDT.

Much To Discuss

Without going into many details of what his chat with Glenn would entail, Titov told newsmen Wednesday he was "sure only of one thing — that we have quite a lot of things to talk about."

"Space is very big," Titov asserted. "It is endless. It is very difficult for one man, though he stayed 24 hours, to know everything there. Two persons on a street at the same time notice different things. I am quite sure my discussion with Col. Glenn will be useful both for him and me."

Titov, a 26-year-old Red air force major, orbited the earth 17 times in a 25-hour flight on Aug. 6, 1961. Glenn, a 41-year-old Marine lieutenant colonel, made a three-orbit flight last Feb. 20.

Common Market Offers Challenge

job in Germany and other European countries.

In beginning his presentation, the former vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia likened the European Common Market to America's 13 Original Colonies, both organized to live, work and trade amongst themselves.

The European Common Market today comprises six nations: France, Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxemburg. They united under the Treaty of Rome in March, 1957.

Seinkiewicz explained that seven other countries, Great Britain, Austria, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland and Greece, are in the process of joining the Common Market.

He emphasized that the European Common Market "can and will be a tremendous factor in world trade" in view of the fact its total population is 270 million.

Provides Opportunity

"As for the United States," Sienkiewicz said, "the Common Market provides an opportunity for us to get into a mass European market." He noted that such industries as the automotive field is already competing with the foreign market.

While explaining that European labor is cheaper than in this country, Sienkiewicz said that "European labor is not as efficient as ours. Cheap labor is costly," he remarked.

It was pointed out that the average hourly wage in the U.S. is $2.36 as compared to $1, including fringe benefits, in Europe.

70 Million Employed

Sienkiewicz noted that the European Common Market's record in its early stages "is good." He said that 70 million people have been employed and it has equalized jobs for men and women.

Summing up the potentials of the European Common Market, the banker listed several reasons why it would be essential for the Unitd States to meet "this economic challenge."

One of the reasons he brought out was that it tends to create good will among the free nations.

"It provides the strongest basis for continuing peace," he explained. "It all leads up to the day when we can live and work and worship and profit in peace and security."

Inspection

charge 50 cents if he wants to — or charge $10.

"It's up to the motorist," he said, "to have his work done where he wants it."

The $4 inspection fee has been in effect in some areas of Lower Bucks since June of last year while in other areas the increase went into effect in November, 1961.

Raises Fees

The Lower Bucks County State Inspection Association, Region 2, voted at its meeting last spring to raise inspection fees in November, 1961 to $4. The region comprises Levittown, Fairless Hills, Newtown, Langhorne, Penndel, Feasterville, Yardley and Trevose.

The association's No. 1 region, which includes Morrisville, Bristol and Route 13 south to Philadelphia City Line, raised its fees to $4 in June, 1961.

Association president William Stanton said that while all Lower Bucks stations are now authorized by the organization to charge $4, he didn't know just how many of the regions in the association have increased their fees in the county or the state.

"Won't Stand For That"

"That's up to each individual region," he said. "I do know that some stations not affiliated with our organization are charging even more than that in parts of other counties but we won't stand for that."

Stanton said, "If any of our members try anything like that — we'll clean our own house. We don't want fees to go any higher than the current $4 because the higher we go — the harder we'll have to work for our money."

Stanton said the state may not have jurisdiction over the fees "but if we start charging too much — they'll find some way of making it tough on us like giving us additional work when we inspect a car."

3 Cars Crash, One Man Hurt

An 83-year-old Fairless Hills man is in satisfactory condition in Lower Bucks County Hospital today following a three-car accident last evening.

Earl Murray of 210 Suffolk Road sustained a possible concussion and lacerations of the forehead while riding in a car driven by his son-in-law, Leroy C. Robinson, 52, of the same address.

Robinson's car and two other vehicles were involved in the mishap at Oxford Valley Road and Olds Boulevard, Bristol Township, shortly before 5 p.m.

Other Drivers

The other autos were driven by B. E. Menges, 55, of 167 Andover Road, Fairless Hills, and Mrs. Naomi Kelly, 35 of 97 Upland Road, Upper Orchard, Levittown.

Murray was admitted to Lower Bucks Hospital after being taken there by the Levittown-Fairless Hills Rescue Squad.

Bristol Township Patrolman Martin Clark charged Robinson with failing to yield the right of way.

2 Levittown Men Injured

Two Levittown men were injured yesterday in a two-car collision in Falls Township.

The mishap took place at the intersection of the Newportville-Fallsington and Tyburn Roads at 8:10 a.m.

Francis Archibald, 39, of 53 Vivid Leaf Lane, Vermilion Hill, was taken to St. Francis Hospital, Trenton, by the Delaware Valley Rescue Squad, where he was admitted for a possible concussion and severe lacerations of the head.

Edwin S. Hunsberger, 27, of 90 Upland Road, Upper Orchard, was treated at Lower Bucks County Hospital for lacerations of the right leg, contusions of the chest and multiple abrasions. He was taken to the hospital by a passing motorist.

Hit Standard

Falls Township police said the cars hit a traffic standard at the intersection and demolished it.

Hunsberger, who was going home from work at U.S. Steel's Fairless Works, was charged with passing a red traffic signal and reckless driving by Sgt. John Rendeiro.

To Reduce Front Yards

New Setback Requirements Are Proposed In Middletown

Middletown Township's Planning Commission last night recommended to the township supervisors that front yard setback requirements in the upper part of the township be reduced 20 feet.

The recommendation, if approved would change the set backs in residential and agricultural zoning areas from 70 to 50 feet.

Robert Lattomus, chairman of the commission, said the reduction would allow site planning in greater conformance with the terrain. It would mean no building would be permitted closer than 50 feet to front roadways, he explained.

The change would apply to future development only, Lattomus said, and would not affect residents presently living in the affected areas.

Larger Back Areas

The change will affect future homeowners above the Reading Railroad, Lattomus reported. He said the change would permit the homeowners to preserve larger recreation areas in their own back yards.

The commission reviewed tentative plans for housing development on a 100 acre tract across Route 413 from George School and proposed that the supervisors decide whether reverse frontage or direct driveways into Double Woods Road be permitted.

The development, proposed by Anthony Dell, of Levittown, and Frank Terranera, is for about 110 homes in the $25,000 to $50,000 range. Construction would begin this year. A public park is included in the plans along with public sewer and water facilities.

Township Manager Charles Melchior called the proposed housing "a definite asset to the community."

Woman Fined Twice For Shoplifting

A Bristol woman, Miss Anna Mae Rollison, who was arrested Tuesday by Bensalem police and fined $25 plus $9 costs on charges of shoplifting paid an additional fine of $50 plus $9 costs on similar charges in Bristol Township yesterday.

Bensalem police arrested the woman on a complaint by Lee Bauso, manager of Butch's Discount market on Street Road, Trevose.

$100 Worth Of Goods

Investigation disclosed the woman had about $100 worth of merchandise in her car which had been stolen from Bargain City on Route 413.

Bensalem Justice of the Peace Chris Ritter sentenced her to 10 days in Bucks County Prison in default of the $10 fine and costs.

Turned over to Bristol Township police, she also admitted the theft of merchandise from Butch's and Bargain City and was fined $50 plus costs by Justice of the Peace Joseph Haines of Bristol Township.

Haines also collected for Ritter the fine he imposed. The jail sentence was dropped.

The Bensalem arresting officer was Ptl. John Smith.

Corrections Necessary

Middletown Returns Bid For Subdivision

A plan for subdivision of 43 acres of Herbert Reedman's Glen Lake Farms for industrial development was returned to Reedman by the Middletown Township Planning Commission for corrections last night.

The plan was submitted to the commission by Edward Pickering III, of Pickering Corts and Summerson engineering firm.

Glen Lake Farms is located at Flowers Mill Road and Old Lincoln Highway in the 400-acre tract recently zoned for industrial use by the township supervisors.

Reedman has indicated to the township that he will auction parcels of the 43 acres off, according to Charles Melchior, Township Manager.

In other action, the commission tentatively approved a subdivision plan for 16 lots at the intersection of Langhorne - Yardley Road and Village Roads. The development, to be known as "Woodside Manor", will be sold to individual homeowners it was indicated by Mrs. Fletcher Weeden, who submitted the plan. The development includes 20½ acres.

The commission suggested that township line road should be continued through the property, but otherwise indicated agreement to the proposed development.

Ziegler Or Boyer

Williams, on the other hand, charges that the party is being weakened by Ziegler's affiliation with Edward P. Boyer, county commission chairman.

Williams said Republicans don't know whether their party is being led by Ziegler or by Boyer.

He said he was dumped by the organization Republicans despite his good record as an assemblyman because he made it clear that he wants Ziegler to disown Boyer.

Mulligan Hopes To Get Kennedy For Bucks Talk

Bucks County Democratic Chairman John C. Mulligan said this morning he is hoping President Kennedy will make a political tour of Bucks County in October.

Mulligan along with 54 other county chairmen attended a meeting of the state Democratic committee in Harrisburg yesterday. Pennsylvania Democratic leaders want the President to make three visits to this state to spark the party's campaign for the November 5 general election.

The president is all ready slated to address the $100-a-plate fund raising dinner Sept. 20 in the huge Farm Show Arena in Harrisburg. State Chairman Otis B. Morse said the President is being sought for speaking engagements in the western and eastern parts of the state. Tentative dates are Oct. 13 in Pittsburgh and Oct. 29 in Philadelphia.

Tour Planned

Mulligan said that he and Morse discussed the possibility yesterday of the President making a tour of Bucks, and perhaps Lehigh Counties, on the date of the Philadelphia appearance.

Mulligan has been negotiating for some time to get the President's brother, Attorney General Robert Kennedy, for the Bucks' Democrats annual Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner, held each fall. He also said that former Philadelphia mayor Richardson Dilworth would not appear in Bucks County prior to the May 15 primary.

Morse told the county chairmen that the Democratic net registration gain for the primary is estimated at 5,000 to give them a state-wide lead over the Republicans of 160,000.

Burglars Wreck Les Girl Salon

Burglars entered the Les Girl Salon, 630 Crown St., Morrisville, sometime last night and stole $66 and caused an estimated $400 in damage, Morrisville police report.

He said entry had been made by prying open the rear door. The $66 was taken from a change drawer. There was an estimated $350 damage to a rear sliding panel, and $50 damage was caused to the wall of a cubicle.

Morrisville police officers William Kerner and Joseph DiGiorgio investigated.

Twp. Schools

Martin said, "added room has been created in Delhaas."

However, Martin noted that increased enrollment in the future will necessitate utilizing all the classrooms in Delhaas. The secondary enrollment of 4,536 today will reach a peak of 7,328 during the 1970-71 term, according to a ten-year enrollment projection prepared by the administration and presented to the school board.

Present enrollment at Delhaas High School is 950 students. Martin noted that 100 of these are attending classes at the Bucks County Technical School. He said the school was built to accommodate 1,250 students.

Changes Figures

Ciccantelli earlier this week said the school "could easily accommodate 1,500 without overcrowding." One day he referred to the present Delhaas enrollment as 900. A day later he told newsmen there are "only 800" in the school.

"As an educator," Ciccantelli said, "I have always been opposed to over building. Schools should not be built to anticipated needs. A proper rule should be to construct facilities to accommodate 65 per cent of the long-time projected enrollment."

School authorities are quick to point out that if this was followed, township schools would be on double sessions at their peak enrollment.

Each school director was given charts recently prepared by the principals of the four secondary schools, showing each classroom and the number of pupils in each room every period of the school day.

The day Ciccantelli visited Delhaas with Bristol Township Board President Louis A. Alimenti, there were 88 absentees and the history classes were in the auditorium seeing a film, it was disclosed by U. Berkley Ellis, Delhaas principal.

Number Of Rooms

At Delhaas today, here's the number of empty classrooms by periods:

1st Period, 12 empty rooms; 2nd period, 14; 3rd period, 12; 4th period, 14; 5th period, 14; 6th period, 14; 7th period, 15, and 8th period, 17.

School administrators feel that if every room was put into use, even with only a few pupils, it would require more teachers, thus incur added costs to the already-overburdened school budget.

Ciccantelli has assailed the school system's so-called cry for more classrooms. Actually, there has been no request by school officials for additional classrooms. The administration, in its ten-year projected enrollment, has suggested building plans which may be required when the township enrollment reaches its peak.

There are presently 11,089 pupils in the Delhaas Jointure. By the 1969-70 term the enrollment is expected to reach a peak of 13,705—an increase of 2,616.
